

Get an Edge on Love with Pheromones

Simply put, pheromones are a form of chemical communication. These types of naturally occurring substances are highly important for animals and insects that use substance signals as their primary mode of communication. Although human emotions and our physical bodies are much more complex than that of animals and insects, the role that pheromones play in bringing in a human mate perform basically the same way these natural chemicals send out depths of the mind scent signals to the opposite sex. Pheromones are detected through an organ three inches inside the nasal called the Vomeronasal Organ (VNO). When the VNO registers the pheromone, it sends a response signal to the brain.

Since pheromones are chemicals our bodies produce naturally, why would we need to also use products containing pheromones if we are looking to enhance our relationships? Much of the reason is lifestyle. What do we do first thing in the morning or at night, and after exercising: take a shower. Soap, shampoo, as well as other personal care products wash off our natural pheromones! We also are likely to cover 90% of our skin when we obtain dressed everyday, so consequently we are not releasing pheromones into the air for a potential partner to be able to unconsciously pick up on. But by supplementing lost pheromones with products containing those powerful substances, we're really "getting back to nature" and re-establishing chemical communication with people around us. When applied on appropriate spots (wrists, neck of the guitar, arms) a pheromone spray endures approximately 8-10 hrs, or until you wash it off.

The powerful effects of human sexual intercourse pheromones have been well researched as well as substantiated. You may have seen stories about human pheromones on 20/20, Dateline NBC, Hard Copy, and other television programs. Newspapers from coast to coast, medical journals, and a variety of publications have featured stories about the amazing discovery of how human pheromones attract. Also keep in mind that many factors effect your affect on the opposite sex appearance, behaviors, and attitude but if you wear a pheromone spray in public, it is possible to generally expect to attract more attention. Do not expect girls to reduce all their inhibitions and begin stalking you nor will men slay dragons or leave their spouse, but pheromones increase comfort, interest and arousal. Pheromones can help you to open up and talk, and encourage people to talk to you, but they can't cause you to compatible with everyone. You still need to make eye contact, smile, and be available.

“ Although most people wear Human Sex Pheromones to be able to improve their love life, pheromones also can give you an extra edge in business affairs, encourage others in order to trust you, and provide extra confidence overall so you can be more successful in most life's endeavors. Offer these types of invisible social magnets an attempt, available as a pheromone spray, and see whom you attract!
