

Popular Aphrodisiac Products

There are many products available all over the world today that offers the promise of increased sex appeal to the opposite sex. Though these products are different in terms of solution, from perfumes and colognes, in order to salves and lotions, these products came from one kind of substance which had been widely known for its use as an aphrodisiac. That is pheromone, such as the popular pheromone cologne.

What is Pheromone? According to scientists, pheromone is really a produced or excreted chemical factor that triggers a social response in members of the same species. Although more commonly known among animals and insects compared to humans, modern research had proven that human pheromone can also be used as a form of aphrodisiac which plays an important role in human attraction.

Evidences of Human Pheromones Although many scientists disagree to the existence of human pheromones, a number of experiments have been done to prove that human pheromones do exist. One of those was the particular McClintock Effect which states that ladies perspiration can affect other women's period.

This Study Exposed a Group of Women to a Whiff of Perspiration from Other Women

It was found that it caused their menstrual cycles to be able to speed up or slow down with regards to the amount of time in the month the sweat was collected: before, during, or after ovulation. Therefore, this kind of study offered that you have two types of pheromone involved: "One, produced ahead of ovulation, shortens the actual ovarian cycle; and the second, produced just at ovulation, and lengthens the cycle".

However, There are Also Evidences Indicating the Result of Human Pheromones as Aphrodisiac

Although there are still no concrete evidence to be able to suggest this, the one examine that a few researchers have done has been with disco bars where men and women mingle with each other in a single hot and dark place.

According to them, the fragrance of your sweat, particularly those via their arm pits, have the most robust strength for increasing their sex appeal, and because the best place have humid weather, the aroma of a man's sweat can easily travel to the opposite sex, thus increasing the man's efforts in having one-night stands or more. This also works the same way for women, though there are still not enough studies done to prove the existence as an aphrodisiac.

Pheromone Products Because of the effect of human pheromones as aphrodisiac, numerous scientists had sought for ways to grow it as means for further increasing a human's capability in attracting the opposite sex. This is when pheromone products, for example human pheromones, have been introduced in the market that contains human pheromones that can be used as aphrodisiac.
